PROTECTIVE ORDER

BACKGROUND

On August 4, 1995 the Montana Public Service Commission (PSC or Commission) received a Motion for Protective Order from the Montana Power Company (MPC) seeking to limit access and use of proprietary and confidential information submitted by MPC to support its revenue requirement increase request to be filed before September 29, 1995. The specific information for protection covers coal and transportation price information, including Burlington Northern Railroad Company (BN) transportation cost information which MPC agreed to protect. MPC will submit this information to show the cost of delivering coal to the Corette and Colstrip units. MPC also seeks to protect information regarding Western Energy Company's (WECO) contract price and other coal price information that MPC claims is market-sensitive or provided to MPC with the understanding that it would remain confidential.

MPC maintains that this coal and transportation price information is "trade secret," pursuant to §§ 69-3-105(2) and 30-14-402(4), MCA, in that this information is not readily available to the general public competitors and could be used to the transportation and coal suppliers' competitive disadvantage if it became known to competitors or future customers, thus reducing profitability and resulting in the economic benefit to its competitors.

Because MPC will submit this information in the form of exhibits and testimony in support of the initial filing and later in response to data requests, MPC has requested this Protective Order prior to its application. MPC requests that the Protective Order be sufficiently broad to encompass any WECO, BN or other proprietary information that may be requested in discovery. For expedience, MPC moved that the Protective Order be sufficiently broad to protect proprietary information that may be filed in this Docket, without further amendments or requests. MPC noted that there are procedures in the protective order to allow challenges to confidentiality, which should protect the public and the parties' rights.

ORDER

IT IS ORDERED that this Protective Order, covering the material and information described by MPC in its Motion, and material and information filed throughout the proceedings in Docket No. D95.9.128, determined by the MPC to be confidential, shall be in effect, unless there is a Commission or MPC decision that the information need not remain protected, as provided in this Order.
